Dear Friends,

I'm writing this as Sheila and I complete an all too short tour in Holland, Germany and Switzerland visiting old friends and newer friends, older friends and younger friends. We've been having a wonderful time recalling the past, enjoying the present, and planning for the future.

"Friendship" and "friends" are words we all use a lot without thinking much. I learnt a lot from a rather serious German student I once taught. On the day after he arrived, he reported with considerable puzzlement, "My landlady asked me if I had made any new friends yesterday. Of course I hadn't – you can't become someone's friend in an hour and a half!" He had a good point; we can use this word too easily. ("Indeed", I hear some of you saying, "and just what do you mean by the greeting at the top of this letter?")

We are, of course, commanded to love our neighbour, and we know how many meanings that word has. Are we supposed to be friends with our neighbour? I was once told that God only expects us to love others, not to like them, and this seems a bit of a cop-out to me. It's all about relationships, and the fundamental key for the Christian is, "Does this relationship help me to be a better Christian or not?" And that applies to everything from a marriage to a chance meeting in a shop. Unlike love, friendship always describes an open and non-restrictive relationship. To be a real friend to someone, to like them, does not in any way restrict their or our being friends with others.

This is very important in a congregation. We should try to get to know and like as many others as we can. You are actually very good at this; it really shows up at fairs and other out-of-Sunday-morning activities. Even if the Charis campaign hadn't raised any money, it would have been good for the way it has helped people not just to love each other but to like each other more, and to see and understand better others' points of view.

The search for a new Rector is now on in earnest. This is a particularly good time to deepen friendship and see it as central to our Christian life. May God bless you in your search.

With love – and I like you too! Bob

From the Chair of the Vestry

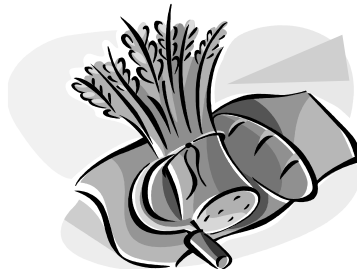

I am very humbled to be asked to be Acting Chair of the Vestry until the appointment of a new Rector.

The Vestry has set up a steering group to guide them in this process. This group comprises four members of the Vestry (Alison Cowe, Margaret Fairbairn, Sari Salvesen and myself) with Rosemary Plumb and Christopher Stevens as extra congregational representatives.

The group has met a couple of times. I speak regularly with the Bishop who has informed me that there are a number of people interested in the charge. The Parish Profile has been updated with particular attention being paid to the challenges we face.

We ask for your continued prayerful support in our quest for a Rector. We will keep you informed of developments.

Kathy Warrender on How NOT to make Strawberry Jam!

As some of you know I'm a "Soup" person!

However, undaunted and ready for a challenge, I decided on the "Jam Quest"..... Easy, I thought! (I wish I had gone to Mary Wallace first!) Helping Sari to pick for the Sunday Stall I decided on strawberry jam.

A friend was a great help. My recipe said "lemons" to make it set, but NO, Friend suggested (A) adding under-ripe strawberries or (B) red currants.

I was all set (or so I thought). Ready to go!

Saturday 7.00 pm I started. I had my saucer ready for testing - great.

7.10 pm. Not setting so decided to add My 2 lemons (despite Friend's redcurrants and under ripe strawberries.)

8.00 pm. STILL NOT SETTING.

10.00 pm. STILL NOT SETTING.

Decided I'd just put it into the jam jars and hope for the best! My daughter said "Just give it time."

Sunday

"What is this?" said my husband as he poured some liquid over his toast. "Do you think it might be a little thin?" (He's always a diplomat.)

Well, if my husband doesn't like it and I wasn't going to waste all that fruit something has to be done.

Empty all the jars and back on the cooker! As I sit here now it's been bubbling away for over an hour - surely it's set by now!

What it will taste like I do not know.

Just remember, I'm good at soup, NOT jam!

Finding Happiness: Monastic Steps for a Fulfilling Life. By Abbot Christopher Jamison

Phoenix £7.99 (2009) 224 pages, paperback ISBN 978-0-7538-2609-6

Christopher Jamison is Abbot of Worth, a Roman Catholic Benedictine abbey in the south of England which featured in the highly successful BBC television series “The Monastery”. He has recently been in Edinburgh where he spoke in St John’s , Princes Street and at the Edinburgh International Book Festival (where he drew a capacity audience to the main tent). His gift for making the fruits of monastic wisdom available to lay people was evident then as it is in his latest book, about which he spoke, “Finding Happiness”.

We all want to be happy and, if we are well disposed, we want others to be happy. But do we know what happiness is? That is Christopher Jamison’s starting point. What do we mean by “happy”? It is a more elusive concept than at first impression we may think. He rejects the equivalence often made of happiness with pleasure, which would make happiness merely a matter of personal taste, or with “feeling good”. There is nothing necessarily wrong with pleasure or “feeling good” but if we rely on them alone they can, even when enjoyed to the full, leave a deep sense of unhappiness. He proposes instead a profound link between happiness and virtue. That is a Benedictine perception. St Benedict describes knowing good and doing good as “a joy and delight” and a monk is someone who “delights in virtue”.

The purpose of the book is to provide a series of stepping stones on the path of virtue and the achievement of true happiness (perhaps best understood, in view of the ambiguities of happiness, as “not being unhappy” and “joy and delight”). These stepping stones, drawn from monastic experience, depend on looking into the human heart and confronting the thoughts which meet us there. Eight thoughts demand attention for this purpose — acedia (spiritual indifference sometimes described as sloth), gluttony, lust, greed, anger, sadness, vanity and pride. Each of these thoughts, apart from sadness, corresponds to one of the seven deadly sins as traditionally understood but the thoughts, although they have much potential for sin, are, at least for most of us most of the time, unavoidable and not in themselves sinful. Abbot Jamison’s concern is rather with the cultivation of virtue, which depends on our response to these thoughts, and with a consideration of the various aspects of that response in relation to each category of thought.

A short review cannot do justice to the richness of this work. There is a brief, but interesting and useful, chapter on the philosophy of happiness and the sources of monastic tradition, but throughout the emphasis is practical with a gentle but firm insight into the realities of our human condition and an acute appreciation of the problems of modern life. Unlike some spiritual works there is no retreat from the world we live in or search for an idealistic and unreal holi-

This is a positive book which addresses us where we are and as we are and is concerned, as the subtitle indicates, with our fulfilment. It affirms life and offers a way of virtue that is also a way of delight. It is an invaluable guide for better and happier living on a sure foundation.

GRANDPARENT'S OBSERVATIONS

My grandson was visiting one day when he asked, "Grandma, do you know how you and God are alike?" I mentally polished my halo and I said, "No, how are we alike?" "You are both old," he replied.

I didn't know if my granddaughter had learned her colours yet, so I decided to test her. I would point out something and ask what colour it was. She would tell me and was always correct.. It was fun for me, so I continued..... At last, she headed for the door, saying, "Grandma, I think you should try to figure out some of these for yourself!"

A little girl was diligently pounding away on her grandfather's word processor. She told him she was writing a story. "What's it about?" he asked. "I don't know," she replied, "I can't read."

TAIZE PRAYER

Taize Prayer will take place in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Musselburgh on Friday 30th October 2009 at 7.30 p.m.

It will be held in St. Martin's R.C. Church, Tranent, on Friday, 27th November 2009 also at 7.30 p.m.

TRAIDCRAFT

The Traidcraft Stall will be on Sunday 4th October rather than Sunday 11th October, to co-incide with Harvest Thanksgiving.

In November it will be on the third Sunday, 15th November , not to clash with our AGM on the 1st , or Remembrance Sunday on the 8th November.

Traidcraft Christmas catalogues are now available at the back of the church. To be absolutely sure that you get what you want it is recommended that your order is submitted by Tuesday 6th October to me.

However, orders will still be accepted until Sunday 15th November.

A . G . M .

Your presence is needed as there is voting to be done!

The following are eligible for re-election:

People's Warden - Margaret Fairbairn

Lay Representative - Sari Salvesen

Alternate Lay Representative - Cindy Sykes

Area Council Representative - Cindy Sykes

Vestry Members - There will be 4 vacancies as John Elcock, Julian Tenant and Wendy Wilkinson retire after 3 years service and cannot be re-elected. Margaret Wastie was co-opted last year instead of Graham Hook and is eligible for election. Therefore, we need several new names. This is an important time for Holy Trinity and you are asked to seriously consider playing your part by coming forward as a candidate for Vestry service, please.

Footnote: John Elcock was recently appointed, by the Vestry, to the office of Acting Chair for the Interregnum and will retire when a new Rector is installed.

Thank you to all who give service to God by their work on the Vestry.

Any questions or suggestions to the Secretary, Alison Cowe.

WARDEN OF READERS

Each Diocese has a Warden of Lay Readers. It is her/his role to care pastorally for Lay Readers, to encourage them in their ministries and to encourage them to continue learning so that lay readers are better equipped to serve their diocese and their congregations in leading worship and in all facets of the ministry team required of them.

The Bishop has appointed Janet McKinnell, Lay Reader and member of the ministry team in our own congregation to be the new Warden. We are delighted with this appointment and honoured as a congregation that one of us has been appointed to this role.

We wish Janet everything good as she works with the other diocesan lay readers and with other Wardens in the Province.
